Championing Inclusive Early Learning: Advancing Expertise in Child Development and Special Needs Education.

East Bridge University offers a Master of Education (M.Ed) with Early Childhood Education and Special Educational Needs (SEN). This program prepares candidates for teaching roles in early childhood, concentrating on children with diverse needs, specifically in grades 1-5, within general and inclusive settings. Learners will be equipped to identify disabilities and craft suitable lesson plans for students with different needs in inclusive environments. Furthermore, the course emphasises the importance of meeting cognitive, emotional, and behavioural needs and promotes an active strategy for educating young students in both standard and inclusive settings.

Why Pursue an Online M.Ed. with Early Childhood Education and SEN?

- ✓ Deepen understanding of child development and foundational learning principles for young children.
